Summary of Conclusions

1. Principals met August 15 to review the diplomatic state of play and discuss next steps on Kosovo.
2. Tony Lake provided a read-out of his trip to European capitals, noting that all governments were broadly supportive of our initiatives and in agreement that a diplomatic solution needed to be reached in the next several weeks. After the completion of the Holbrooke mission, we would consider next steps, which might include a more inclusive Contact Group meeting in Geneva at the end of the week. Proposals for informal working groups on military implementation and economic reconstruction needed to be fleshed out, with the EU taking the lead on the latter

3. Secretary Perry and General Shalikashvili noted that DoD was working on a paper on NATO implementation, which would be discussed by Deputies August 18. Once ideas on the mission and mandate for the post-settlement implementation force were fleshed out, details of troop numbers could be worked out more easily.

4. On the issue of Kosovo, Principals agreed that refugee flows should not in and of themselves be treated as a casus belli, but Dick Holbrooke should be instructed to remind Milosevic that we had previously warned him of the consequences of Serb-sparked conflict in the province. State agreed to revise language in a demarche to be used by Holbrooke.

5. On the subject of a Congressional and public strategy, Principals agreed to hold off until after the Holbrooke mission was complete. Lake would, however, brief Allied ambassadors in the next day or so to the broad outlines of his trip, and State could brief non-NATO troop contributors at an appropriate level.
